International Women in Engineering Day 2022

International Women in Engineering Day is celebrated on June 23 every year across the globe to honor women in the engineering field. We are proud of our women engineers at CBC Steel Buildings, and all women across the engineering industry. From civil engineers, structural engineers, project engineers, and design engineers these women find innovative solutions and are vital to creating our custom metal building designs. Thank you for being valuable assets to our industry and transforming the world with your incredible achievements.

This past June, to honor our women engineers at CBC Steel Buildings, and all the brands of Nucor Buildings Group, we created the video below to recognize a few of the women that are crucial to our industry.
